REPAX™ HELPS MOVERS “MOVE SMART”.
Local Start-up Takes Eco-Friendly Moving Concept National.

Washington, DC (November 29, 2011) – Local business Repax Inc. has been offering a reusable packing solution to movers in the Baltimore/Washington area for two years and is pleased to announce its recent growth into the New York and Los Angeles markets. The Repax™ mission is to make moving easy and affordable, while minimizing the environmental impact.

Since its inception two years ago, co-founders Olandis C. Gary, formerly of the National Football League, and Marcus T. Stephens, former Sr. Creative Director of Under Armour, have worked diligently building the Repax™ brand, team, and infrastructure. Their consistency, superior service, and environmental benefit has been recognized by clients such as the NFL Players Association, the American Moving and Storage Association, and the U.S. House of Representatives.

“Repax was awesome! The customer service was very professional. Delivery and pick-up both were right on time. The crates and dollies made my moving process so much easier. I’ll never buy or assemble another cardboard box for future moves.”

- yelp.com review

The Repax™ moving system is designed to enhance the efficiency and performance of residential and commercial moves. Repax™ significantly reduces the amount of time and effort spent in making your move, reduces the cost of your move, and simultaneously provides security for your valuables during the move. Repax™ makes the entire process of moving easy, affordable, and ECO-FRIENDLY.

Repax™ - Move Smart.
